Re: 3rd Quarter 2009 Activity Report

Counting the Days

An employee of the Urban County Government was disciplined and the discipline was delivered by way of the written form. The form states on its face that discipline may be appealed by the employee so long as the employee gives notice to the Civil Service Commission Secretary within 10 calendar days of the date the discipline notice is delivered. In this instance the tenth calendar day fell on a weekend. The person to whom the notice must be delivered was not available, nor was the government center opened in order to sign the notice in the presence of that person. When the employee reported to the appointed official on the following Monday the employee was not permitted to give notice of his intent to appeal.

We initially inquired directly to the Human Resources Division as to the basis for barring the employee from filing his notice. We were referred to Sections 21-44 and 21-45 of the Urban County Code, as cited on the discipline form. The code section in question states that discipline may be appealed by giving written notice within 10 days. The word "calendar" does not appear in the code sections. Another section of the code tells us that days are counted in accordance with state statute unless other intent is clearly stated. "Time, How Computed. Whenever a notice is required to be given, or an act to be done, the Kentucky Rules of civil procedure shall apply in the computation of time." Ordinance 3958, Section 5(j). The statutes tell us that the count begins on the day after the event. Also we learn that, if the final day falls on a weekend or legal holiday, then the number of days is extended to the next following business day. See KRS Section 446.030 (1)(a). Upon doing this research we determined that the policy of accepting appeal notices within 10 calendar days conflicts with the ordinances and the statutes.

We drafted a memorandum to the Human Resources Division outlining our rationale and requesting reconsideration of the policy. Director Allen referred the memorandum to the Department of Law. The Department of Law concurred with our reasoning and refined the policy to conform to the code of ordinances and the state statutes.

Request for Outside Counsel

200 East Main Street

There is a lawsuit pending against the Urban County Government, brought by an employee. The Department of Law has requested an interview with Citizens' Advocate Staff concerning this litigation. It is possible, indeed probable that the interest of the Administration, represented by the Department of Law conflicts with the interests of the Citizens' Advocate Office, and, by extension, the Urban County Council. We have serious questions which require legal advice prior to participating in an interview. Standards of legal ethics would prohibit the Department of Law from rendering advice to this office and to the Administration at the same time, since the interests of those two parties are different. In order to ensure that our participation complies with all legal requirements and also does not violate any other interest we therefore request permission to retain outside counsel.

New Procedure

When we presented the second quarter report at the August 11, 2009 Committee of the Whole meeting several council members requested that they be advised of complaints we receive from their districts. After that meeting we instituted a new procedure to send an email to the appropriate council member whenever we receive a complaint from his or her respective district. The message we send includes the date of the complaint and a brief description of the nature of the complaint. We began the notifications immediately on the 11th of August, and went back to August first to let council members know about the complaints from their districts. PLEASE note that the activity for this quarter reflects cases since July 1, so there may be more cases reflected in a district totals than the number of cases for which the council member has received notice. We trust that this information is helpful to Council Members.

EEO Recommendation

The employment process is, quite obviously, handled by the Division of Human Resources. If an applicant or employee believes that the Division mishandled the process, he or she has avenues within Human Resources through which to request reconsideration. If the applicant or employee believes that the mishandling violated his or her rights under the Equal Employment Opportunity Act the complaint is also handled within the Division of Human Resources. That applicant or employee would find him or herself complaining to the division about the division. This structure calls into question the impartiality of any review of an EEO complaint. In prior administrations the EEO Officer was located structurally outside of the Division of Human Resources while still within Administration. RECOMMENDATION: We believe that the current structure does not foster confidence in the system and therefore recommend that the Intergovernmental Committee consider whether the EEO Officer ought to be located outside the Division of Human Resources.

Unreasonable Conduct over a Pothole Claim

On occasion this office deals with complainants, who have come to the end of their tether. Some are justifiably upset, angry and generally difficult because they believe to be caught up in some outrageous wrong. Others are difficult for reasons that go well beyond the circumstances of their case and these people are often very difficult to handle. Our best example of this type of unreasonable conduct can be clearly defined in the case of the Sixth Street Pot-Hole Constituent. It is not uncommon for difficult complainants to change the focus of their complaints from the substantive issue to how their complaint is being handled by the agency or particular staff of the agency. When dealing with people whose conduct is unreasonable, being aware of our own emotional response to the complainant is a must. Anger in ourselves leads to a tendency for us to attempt to assert our dominance over the complainants. An 'acknowledgement' and 'do-not-push-back' approach generally is best in dealing with unreasonable complaint conduct. The approach taken in dealing with the Sixth Street Pot-Hole Constituent became apparent immediately during the initial interview held in the government center lobby. A heated discussion transpired between the constituent himself and a particular staff person subsequently handling the constituent's pothole claim. Measures were taken by our staff to redirect the conversation back to the substantive issue at hand which helped to diffuse any further verbal altercations. Once the core issue was brought to light, considerable effort was taken to define our agency boundaries keeping in mind that the complainant 'owns' the issue and the agency 'owns' the complaint. Managing all complaints well from the onset is the key message relayed in this text. Communicating this message to the complainant provides a clear understanding of what is expected. Our office will continue to encourage the need for all agency staff to effectively implement the best practice strategies used for managing unreasonable complaint conduct.
